Freshmen Elect Andres President

By Charlie Vietzen

Fred Andres, New Albany, Ind., has been chosen president of the Freshman Class for the 1953-54 scholastic year. Following a week of active campaigning, the freshmen cast their ballots on Tuesday, Nov. 8, and the results of the election were announced on the same date.

Hal Newman of Oak Park, Ill., was named Vice-President of the class; Bob Gasior of Hammond, Ind., was elected to the position of Secretary and Ed Arenz of Elmhurst, Ill., is the new Treasurer of the class.

The campaign officially opened on Oct. 27 with a meeting of the Freshman Class. At this meeting the various candidates were introduced by their campaign managers, and the party platforms were given. The participating parties were the Joecrats, Perlongos, Progressors, and Your Party. The Joecrats and the Perlongos each claimed two of the class offices.

The campaign consisted of speeches among the Freshman Class, various political displays, handbills, posters, etc. Gino Pacetti unsuccessful candidate for vice-president, went so far as to drop leaflets from a low flying plane, but his efforts were in vain.

The platform presented by Andres advocated the organization of a Booster Club to back all St. Joe functions, an increased intramural program, and the organization of a class Mass day. The officers have also pledged themselves to back the Bennett Hall building program.

The other candidates for the presidential office were Bob Conley and Don Backly. Candidates for vice-president were Gino Pacetti, Russ Mitcham, and Grant Shuflitowski. Candidates for Secretary were Brian McCarty and Phil Battaglia. And the candidates for treasurer were Vince Battaglia and Gerry Pabst.

The one disappointment aspect of the elections was the small number of freshmen casting ballots. Of the 340 freshmen, only 270 voted in the elections.

St. Joe Men Give College Clean Bill

By Buel Adams

A more-or-less clean bill of fare was handed St. Joseph's dormitory conditions in a recent survey of all campus students taken by the Student Council for the administration.

The only spots to warrant a plurality of complaint were the lack of storage space for clothes and the uncomfortable beds. Temperature control, ventilation, lighting, study space, and bathroom facilities all passed the student's inspective eye.

Apparently the most satisfactory item in the students' rooms is the ventilation. Some 74.3% of the almost 400 residents queried termed it "satisfactory." 12.2% called it "barely adequate," 10.2% unsatisfactory, and 3.3% very poor. Leading the parade were the frosh of Seifert, where 92.9% were happy with the breezes that flow through their rooms. Noll and the Science dorm were also high. Drexel was the most pessimistic. Only 43.0% of Drexel's hordes called their ventilation satisfactory, though this was a plurality of the returns. In the Administration Building, 46.5% gave this phase the highest accolade, though here more termed it unsatisfactory than "barely adequate."

Lighting Good

Next on the honors list is the lighting. Throughout the campus, 69.0% called it adequate, 17.4% "barely adequate." 8.5% inadequate, 2.8% very poor, and 2.3% bad. This time Science was high, with 93.3% approval of the lighting. The Ad Building turned in a 66.7% quota and Seifert was 65.1% in favor. Low again was Drexel, this time with only 60.5% approval. The worst complaints were from Noll, where almost 9% placed it in either one of the last two categories.

Third in approval was study space, with a 66.7% "adequate" rating. 17.3% said they needed one fourth more space, 11.4% needed one half more space and 4.6% needed twice as much. Surprisingly, Drexel led the pack this time—77.9% for those roomy Drexel desks. Science had 76.0%, while the Ad Building had a meager 50%. Seifert turned in 60% and Noll 66.1% for. Almost one-fourth of Noll's residents need at least half as much more space to hit the books.

Other Comments

The majority of the other items on the survey had less than 50% favorable comment. Bathroom facilities were rated only 28.7% satisfactory throughout the campus, 42.1% fair, 15.1% poor, 9% very poor. 4.1% said the location was OK, 1% said it was not. Here the halls were fairly even. Science led in "satisfactory's" with 37.7%; all others except Drexel were above 29%, the senior hall limping in with a 13.8% rating. Combining the satisfactory and fair ratings, Science again led, with 74.1% of its residents in one of those two categories. Drexel's comments were, for the majority, "fair," and they

Interracial Collegiate Conference Slated For Collegeville Campus

The second annual Interracial Collegiate Conference will be held on the St. Joseph campus on November 21 and 22. This program is sponsored by the College Program Committee of the Catholic Interracial Council of Chicago in cooperation with the faculty and Student Council of St. Joseph's College.

Acting as hosts for the convention will be the Interracial Council here at St. Joseph's. Head of this council is Bob Lenzini. Other members of the council are John Miller and William Dunn.

The conference will open on Saturday morning with registration and an invocation. Welcoming addresses will then be given by the Very Rev. Raphael Gross, President of the college, and by Hugh McAvoy, President of the Student Council. The assembly will then be addressed by Rev. Louis J. Putz, of the University of Notre Dame.

Several commissions will be held throughout the afternoon, with another address at 5 o'clock by Mr. Lloyd Davis, Executive Secretary of the Catholic Interracial Council of Chicago. The members attending the conference will be guests at the St. Joseph basketball game to be played Saturday evening, and an informal dance will be held following the game.

Following Mass and breakfast on Sunday morning, a final plenary session will be held at 10 o'clock. Mr. Walter Baker of DePaul University will deliver the closing address at this session. Benediction at 11 o'clock will officially close the conference.

Three topics have been selected for discussion by the various commissions throughout the conference. These subjects are Racial Injustice on the Campus, Racial Injustice in the Church, and Racial Injustice in the Community at Large. Serving as commission leader for the conference will be Mr. William Mullins of Marquette University. Other sub-commission leaders will be Marge Baldauf, Alverno College; Olga Robinson, St. Xavier's College; Don Perlick, University of Illinois-Navy Pier; and Margherita Galassini, College of St. Francis.

The entire student body of the college has been enrolled in the council by the Student Council of St. Joseph's. This assures that every student on the campus is eligible to attend any or all of the commissions.

Last year's conference was held at DePaul University in Chicago. All of the Catholic colleges in the Midwestern United States have been invited to attend the conference.

Publicity for the conference is being handled by Lewis College, Lockport, Ill. The Committee on Promotional Activity has been formed by students from Notre Dame, and the Committee on Registration will be composed of students from Fournier Institute and Rosary College of Chicago.

Father's Club Announces New Officers

By Dick Bender

The St. Joseph's Fathers' Club held their annual election of officers Friday evening, Oct. 30, in Chicago's Sheraton Hotel. The club elected James J. Griffin as President, succeeding the retiring President, Mr. Ralph Neff, who was appointed chairman of the Executive Committee.

Other officers elected were: Raymond Schuessler, First Vice President; Maurice Garvey, Second Vice President; Dr. S. J. Governale, Third Vice President; Henry C. Carr, Fourth Vice President; Clarence Flynn, Secretary; and Samuel Giuffre, Treasurer.

Other members of the Executive Committee beside Chairman Neff are: C. A. Cheevers, James E. Kehoe, George M. McCarthy, Raymond A. Snyder, and Dr. Fred J. Stucker.

The club also decided to mail membership cards to all fathers of St. Joe students. They invited fathers to become members of, and solicit other members for the St. Joe Boosters Club.

The next regular meeting of the Father's Club will be Friday evening, Dec. 11, at the Sheraton Hotel.

SJC-SFX Read Shakespeare For Recordings

Rehearsals for a recording of William Shakespeare's Merry Wives of Windsor have been in progress since the early part of October. The reading, under the direction of Messrs. Champlin and O'Connell, casts seven St. Joseph students. Four young ladies from St. Xavier College, Chicago, Ill., play the feminine roles.

The members of the cast are Buel Adams, Roger Perterka, Ronald Aygarn, Dick Kotheimer, William Walker, Larry Penning, and James Thompson. The four girls from St. Xavier's College are Pat Plumstead, Sheila Ford, Phyllis Bernat, Freida Thonosawous.

The recording will be made privately on Nov. 21 in the school auditorium. The recording will then be kept in the school library for further use and reference.

A dramatic reading of the play will be presented for the girls at St. Xavier at a later date.

"The recognition of merit in the individual is natural and proper as an incentive to personal and social progress." This quotation is taken from the St. Joseph's College catalogue and is used in introducing the various essay contests sponsored by the college for the benefit of the student body. In the past there has been a definite lack of participation in these contests even though the outstanding participants in these contests receive substantial monetary awards along with the prestige of being contest winners. It is possible to win twenty-five, fifty, or even one hundred dollars by participating in the contest. Yet each year these cash prizes are either overlooked or ignored by the majority of the student body.

The greatest reason for the lack of participation is the misconception that these essay contests are never won by anyone but the so-called "brains" of the school. Nothing could be further from the truth. A check of the winners of the last few years would immediately disprove this fact.

Another reason given by most of the students for passing up the contests is the time element. Classes, term papers, intramurals, and pinochle take up quite a bit of the students time. The answer to this is that any contest entry need not be an extra-curricular activity. A class assignment, such as an essay, term paper on any subject, a short story, or almost anything can be lengthened a bit, polished just a little, and submitted as a possible prize winning entry. Most of the time put into such a project would have been necessary for the classwork.

The college offers three competitive contests in writing. These contests are:

A) The Alumni Essay Award given annually to the student submitting the best English essay to a committee of three appointed by the St. Joseph's Alumni Association. The first prize in this contest is twenty-five dollars; the second prize, fifteen dollars. This contest is open to the entire student body.

B) The Mary J. Pursley Memorial Award for Creative Writing is given annually to the student submitting the best example of creative writing. Any form of fiction, drama, or poetry is acceptable. The award for this contest is fifty dollars. This contest is also open to the entire student body.

C) The Hanley Science Award is given annully to the student who, in the estimation of the instructors in the Division of Natural Sciences, composes the best essay on some topic in the field of science or mathematics. This contest is limited to members of the junior and senior classes taking a major or minor sequence in the Division of Natural Sciences. The first prize for this contest is one hundred dollars and a second prize of fifty dollars is also given.

The active participation of the students in the contests is the only way to fulfill the purpose of the contest. The contests are not held merely for the purpose of giving away a few hundred dollars. During the last few years, the cooperation of the students in these contests has not been what it should be. Last year, for example, from a student body of over 500, there were only 10 entries in the Alumni Essay Contest, and only 20 entries in the Pursley Memorial Contest.

Further information regarding the contests will be made public in the near future. Why not show some school spirit and enter the contests?

Undaunted STUFFstaffer Uncovers Typical Puman

By Roger Uecker

The other day I had the dubious privilege of making the acquaintance of the most forgetable character I've ever met. (You see I'm a feature writer for STUFF and I'm always looking for the human interest angle.) His attire was not unusual. He was wearing dirty white bucks, kaiki pants, a tee shirt and a S. J. C. windbreaker.

The first thing he said when we met was, "Sure is nice weather we're having, isn't it?" "Yes," I replied, "but let's talk about you. Do you have any hobbies?" "No," he answered. "How about sports," I asked, "what's your favorite?" "Well, I can't really say, I never played sports much," was his answer. "Did you ever do any extensive traveling?" I asked. "I've been to Remington," he responded.

"I'll try another approach," I thought. "Who is your favorite movie star?" He paused rather thoughtfully then replied, "It used to be Rin Tin Tin, but now I'm sort of leaning toward Lassie." "What about records?" I asked. He thought Bing would hit the top some day.

I could see I was getting no place fast so I tried a shot in the dark. "You haven't been saved drowning by Miss Universe, or anything like that, lately, have you?" "No," he said, "but I was out in a boat once." "Yes, go on," I replied. "And it didn't turn over," he added.

He hadn't recently won the Gold Cup Race, didn't come from a family of chiropodists, wasn't the past owner of a coffee plantation, and his father wasn't heir to the throne of Luxenburg. He wasn't on the lam from the Chicago police (once he did get a traffic ticket) hadn't been investigated by Congress, and didn't know what a "pusher" was.

I was dejected, how dull could a person be. I thanked him for the interview and we parted. I went back to my room and started to write but I had forgotten to put his name down. What was it? It had slipped my mind. I guess it doesn't matter though, because if you ever met him you'd want to forget him.

N. F. Discussion Reveals Its Aims

The National Federation of Catholic Students, following its plan to bring N. F. to the students, held an informal discussion in Noll Hall Lounge Oct. 28, 1953. The discussion was on the nature and problems of N. F. on campus, showing how it could be of assistance to many of the clubs on campus through the services of its agencies. The federation was discussed on its three levels: national, regional, and local, in the talks given by Rev. Albert Wuest, Campus and Regional Moderator and Buel Adams, Regional Press Commission Chairman and National Treasurer.

Those present were divided into groups for informal, personal discussions. Acting as discussion leaders, besides Father Wuest and Adams, were Francis Holzer, Regional Science Commission Chairman, and John Good, Junior Delegate. Coffee was served during the discussion and the Senior Delegate, Ken Ryan, acted as impromptu master of ceremonies.

Green Beans Speak Up

By Ed Stepan

When approached on the subject of co-education at St. Joseph's, various members of the Freshman Class gave the following opinions:

Ben Valentine: It might be good for the atmosphere, but I came to college to study and that wouldn't help me study.

Jim Kane: We need the opposite sex as much as we need beer.

Vince Battaglia: It would be an improvement for the school because the boys would dress and conduct themselves much better.

Jack Stoll: Coed? You mean those other creatures of the universe, commonly called girls? This could be what I need for inspiration.

Gene Beining: Wow! It sure would build up the moral of the men.

Tom Radzinski: I think it is for the birds. St. Joe would be more of a marriage bureau.

Bill Cassin: I am all for it because life and spirit on the campus would be greatly increased. I also go for the girl cheer leaders.

Jerry Benigni: We would have the best intramural program in the world.

Bill Morrison: It sure would break the monotony in trig. class.

Paul Temple: I am strictly against the college going co-ed. I believe that to have women on the campus would harm the college to such extent that many of the students would be seeking another school.

Dan Fenker: I am against it, otherwise I wouldn't be here. I feel that I would learn more as it is.

Bob Gasior: Better advantages toward learning Natural Science by star gazing.

Jerry McCue: There would be enough girls to go around at the mixers.

John Baird: It would be very possible and very plausible. The seniors could be evicted from Drexel Hall and it could be converted into a girl's dormitory. I suppose other halls would have to be built.

Charles Trierweiler: Gee! I don't know. It might be a good idea after all.

Tom Phillipp: I'm all for it. And it may raise the curve system used on the campus.

BILLSTUFF

By Bill Feely

Crash, Bam, Bang and Billstuff almost didn't make another appearance for your humble reporter was involved in an auto mishap since the last issue of Stuff came off the press. But knowing that the paper must survive and that my critics were just as anxious as ever to tell me that they hadn't seen their name in the paper, I escaped death's door and once again am making a feeble attempt to report the news trivia of St. Joe.

Now that "Blondes Prefer St. Joe" is but a part of the dramatic past, and the sombreros and strainers are no longer wearing apparel for third year men, both students and those faculty members, who dared to attend, agree that the Junior Pep rally was by far the best of the current year. To the upperclassmen it brought to mind the bygone days when Frank Pavalko (52) directed his thespian extravaganzas.

A note to those who enjoyed Dick Bender's role in the pep rally: You should have heard his speech before a last minute change of lines due to circumstances beyond the control of the Junior class.

Brother Phil, mainstay of St. Joe's library and chief horticulturist of African violets on campus, has decided to add to the schools icthyology section by providing a tank of tropical fish. With Ken Ryan denoting some equipment and 'fishy' advice, the project should be completed before Thanksgiving. Rumor has it that the amiable Brother will stock his aquarium with Piranha, the South American cannibal fish, thus keeping the library's patrons from interfering with the finny creatures.

Among Alumni on campus the day Al Olechna celebrated his twentieth birthday were John (Ox) Regan (55), Bill Gehring (55), and Boyd Reutebuch (53).

Congratulations on their Golden Wedding anniversary to the parents of Frs. Marcellus and Boniface Dreiling, St. Joe's Math and Physics Departments. And speaking of matrimonial bliss Matt Herriges became engaged recently to a gal from St. Mary of the Woods.

A conversation between two frosh while waiting in the chow line: Pat. I got four F's and a D for mid-term. Mike. That's nothing, I got five F's. Pat. I can't figure it out, I attend all of my classes, but those lousy tests really foul me up.

To those social minded individuals: The Ranch House (North of Rensselaer) is adding a new extension to its building, and tentative plans include Friday night dances.

Odds'n Ends: Rollerskating becoming the chief sport of upper West Seifert . . . Joe Miller befuddling the Drexel cattle with his realistic cow call . . . Fr. Baechle capturing a rare insect near the publications building . . . Joe Kneip and Dick Obergfell attending a press conference at Marquette . . . Bob La Fontaine and Don McLean patiently waiting for their rodent friends to chomp their way through the walls of Drexel 314 . . . Will Kellogg chasing two of the girls from St. Marks out of the auditorium during the Junior Pep Rally, sending them back to the care of the good nuns who accompanied them on the trip . . . One of the frosh campaign managers evidently unable to spell 'riches,' as evidenced by the poster set up alongside the walk between the post-office and cafeteria . . . Bohdan Strawniak writing a thirty two page letter . . . Some words of advice to bring this to a finis. Remember, even puppy love can lead to a dog's life.

Collegiate Review

Reprinted from the Carroll News, John Carroll U., Cleveland, Ohio:

Education is not a commodity. Not being material, it cannot be paid for. It is sometimes easy to lose sight of this fact among the various charges and fees connected with the acquisition of an education, but its disregard leads to a loss of perspective and purpose.

When you buy coal, you pay by the ton—the more you get, the more you pay. But when you "buy" an education, you pay one fee—an entrance fee. The student who gets the most from his schooling and the one who gets the least pay the same rate.

From Princeton University:

The dean of Princeton University's graduate school of liberal arts has ruled that all his students must wear academic gowns to dinner. Students held a meeting and voted to have the order rescinded, but Dean Hugh Taylor said, "There are certain things that votes do not decide."

From the University of Kansas:

The University of Kansas is defending its right to the custody of the sole survivor of Custer's famous last massacre, a horse named Commanche.

Commanche, now stuffed, stands in a university museum. But a Kiwanis Club in Montana has started a fight to bring him back to the site of the battlefield.

"Horse heaven to Commanche is on the banks of the Little Big Horn River," the club president wrote Kansas Governor Edward Arn. "Most people in Kansas never heard of Commanche, and besides we understand the gallant gelding has been allowed to get dusty and moth-eaten in Kansas University museum."

Countered the head of the Kansas zoological department, "We placed a special humidor in his case just last year."

Governor Arn threw his full support behind his state university, but the Montana people promised not to give up.

From India:

Compulsory military training for all college and high school students in India was discussed without conclusion in the House of People in New Delhi. Speakers generally supported the scheme and said it would make young people more disciplined.

From New York University:

A student at New York University has discovered a new way to work his way through school. Standing about in Washington Square, he realized he was averaging 80 cents an hour—panhandling.

From Augustana College:

For the second straight year the inter-fraternity council at Augustana College, Ill., has refused to permit a reporter from the Observer to attend its meetings.

The council says it is a private organization, and that as such, it has the right to control its publicity. It represents about half of the total male enrollment.

From now on, the Observer says, it will print only fraternity news that is released by the council and it will appear in a small clearly-labeled "Greeks" section of the paper.

Puma Basketeers To Face Alumni Squad In First Game

St. Joseph's 1953-54 basketball season gets under way Nov. 21 with the opening game against the Alumni squad to be held in the Collegeville fieldhouse. The schedule shows a total of ten games on the road and ten games to be played in Pumaville. Prior to the opening of the season, the team will put on a basketball exhibition in the fieldhouse on the night of Nov. 19. The purpose of this exhibition will be to acquaint the student body with the members of the squad, and also to clarify the rules to be used in the coming season.

The Alumni game on Nov. 21 will bring back to the campus such players as Boyd "Butch" Reutebuch, George Peters, Mike Kacmar, Dick Collins, Bob Horhey, and last year's captain, Jack Dwyer. There is also a possibility that Bill Elbert, a member of last year's starting five, will obtain leave from the army and will be on campus for the game.

This year's squad will be composed of such veterans as Willie Kellogg, Don Merki, Bernie Boff, Chet Pilat, Tim O'Brien, Marv Hackman, Bernie Horn, Ed O'Rourke, Terry McCarthy, Ray Cerney, and Jim Zid. Missing from the squad because of military service are Bob Daly, Bill Mitchell, and Vince Keagan.

Outstanding freshmen that may see action this year are Tom McNulty, Jerry Benigni, Dan Fenker, Jim Noll, Ed Dwyer, John Tully, and Don Bredemann.

Last year's team compiled the record of 13 wins and 10 losses with a 7-3 record in the ICC Conference. This record was good enough to tie Butler for the league championship.

The biggest problem facing the team this year will be finding someone to match Bill Elbert's rebounding power that sparked the last year's team. In the early workouts this season, Chet Pilat has been moved to the pivot spot with Merki and Boff playing the forward positions. Pilat will alternate with Ed O'Rourke in the pivot position.

When interviewed Coach Scharf stated, "I feel the personnel this year is as good as last year's, the problem is if they will fit together as well." Coach Scharf feels that the toughest opposition this year will come from Illinois Wesleyan, Great Lakes, Butler, Valpo, and Indiana State.

Pumatters

By Dick Obergfell

With the gridiron season rapidly drawing to a close the sporting interest turns to basketball. But before we leap into the hardwood activities for this issue, a few notes of football.

The Butler Bulldogs walked off with everything but the stadium this year in ICC competition. Tony Hinkle's men clinched the crown on their home grounds by flattening Valpo 32-20. Valpo beat Butler last year to claim a share in the honors. But this year it was a different story as the Bulldogs crossed paydirt in every period. Butler held the initial spot in scoring, total offense, passing, rushing, and total defense.

The Pumas brought the curtain down on their league play against Ball State on Oct. 31. The Cardinals took home a 14-6 victory to extend St. Joe's streak of consecutive losses in ICC play. The Pumas have dropped 10 straight league contests in the last two years.

This was the Pumas year for rebuilding, that's as good as an excuse as any, but everyone expected better things from the gridmen. Of course, you might say we did better than last year, this year we won a game. But that's not the answer. One of the big difficulties this year was depth. There wasn't any. Last year we had a flock of frosh and sophomores that were ready to move up and fill in where the graduates left off. Where were they this year?

St. Joseph's tied for the championship in basketball and finished second in baseball, that should prove that the league is not too tough for a school the size of St. Joe.

There is one remaining factor, the players. Every day from 3:30 till 6:00 a student will see a group of red and white jerseys blocking, tackling, running plays, and doing calisthenics. They practiced long and hard. What's wrong? If you can figure it out I'm sure the athletic staff would be glad to know the answer.

The basketball Pumas will open the 1953-54 season in the fieldhouse Nov. 21 opposed by a team consisting of ex-Puma basketballers. The annual alumni game should be quite an attraction for it will feature such stars as Jack Dwyer, the center on Mr. Sharf's winning combo last year. Jack set a new mark for four year scoring by dropping in 339 points last year and pushing his four year point production over the 1,000 mark. Jack was selected to the district All-American All Catholic, and captained the squad for the second consecutive year. To add to these honors he was voted to the Midlands and ICC dream team last year. Bill, "Prince" Elbert also a stalwart of last season will be on hand to see what he can do about halting the Pumas in their opening hardwood encounter.

The addition of Illinois Wesleyan to the 1953-54 schedule will add interest as well as some stiff competition. Wesleyan along with Great Lakes are standouts as far as non-conference foes are lined up. Butler, Indiana State, and Valpo will furnish a large road block in the Pumas victory trail.

Lewis Flyers will Face St. Joe In Gridiron Season Finale

The Lewis Flyers, an old Midlands conference foe, will furnish the opposition for the Puma finale, here Sunday. Nov. 15. It will be the last chance for the Pumas to better their unimpressive 2-6 record for the season.

But this is no worse than last year when St. Joe traveled to Lockport, Ill. with an 0-8 mark only to have an intercepted pass kill the chances of a Puma victory. The 14-14 tie in 1952 was the closest St. Joe has ever come to defeating their out-of-state rival. Lewis holds a two game edge on the Pumas in the three game history of the contest. In 1950 and 1951 St. Joe was on the short end of 27-12 and 31-13 scores, respectively.

To add a twist of irony to the losing game, the Pumas opened St. Ambrose, also an old Midland foe and a team which had never tasted defeat at the hands of the Collegeville eleven. This adds a double incentive to go out and back the team to a victory.

It would also add somewhat of a cheerful note to a hapless season if we could down two teams we had never beaten before.

Lewis, who had the dubious honor of sharing the Midlands cellar with the Pumas last year, will start a much improved squad this year. In boasting of a 3-2-1 record, coach "Red" McCarthy will present a fine running and passing attack along with a rugged defense.

The Pumas will still be feeling the absence of halfback Ray Ramirez. Other than Ramirez the squad will be at its peak. It will also be the last game for seniors, Bill Zimmer, John Thorpe, Ed Linskey, Fred Handler, and Jim Noll.

Collegeville Team Bows To Ball State

By Jim Booth

In what could be termed a punter's duel played at mid-field, the Ball State Cardinals downed St. Joseph's 14-6 before 2,000 disappointed Puma fans. The defeat marked the fifth straight conference loss of the season for the Pumas.

The Pumas received the opening kickoff, but were forced to punt on fourth down. After the ball had changed hands several times, the Cardinals scored on a 49 yard pitchout and pass play from Ray Nix to Dick Warthman. The extra point was made and the score was 7-0.

In the second period, Quarterback Bill Zimmer gained 31 yards on a quarterback keep play, but the long run was nullified by a penalty. After another exchange of punts, an intercepted pass by linebacker, John Donnelly set up the Pumas only scoring march of the afternoon.

Pumas Score

Two passes by Zimmer, both to Pete Fenlon, moved the ball from the State 49 yard line to the 4 yard marker. On second down, Freshman fullback, Jerry Campagna, took a hand-off from Zimmer and plunged into the end zone for the touchdown. The extra point was missed and the score was 7-6.

Ball State received the kickoff for the second half but neither team could start a scoring drive during the third period. Neither team could penetrate the other's 30 yard line.

Early in the fourth period, the Cardinals threatened. But their drive was halted on the Puma 13, and St. Joe took over on downs. The Pumas moved the ball to the 23 where a State interception set up the final score of the game.

Cardinals Fumble

After State fullback, Wally Gartee, had carried the ball to the St. Joe 12, Bill Zimmer recovered a fumble to halt the drive. The Pumas moved the ball to their 35 where Frank Szymanski punted to the Ball State 20.

From the 20 yard line, the Cardinals put together the longest scoring drive of the game as they moved 80 yards for a touchdown. The outstanding run of this touchdown march was a 40 yard end sweep by fullback Gartee. The Cardinal scored the final touchdown on a two yard plunge and the extra point was added to make the score 14-6.

The ICC standings are:

Butler	5	0
Valparaiso	3	2
Evansville	2	2
Ball State	2	3
I. State	2	3
St. Joe	0	5

Klein Stars As Knights Are Beaten

In a game played in sub-freezing temperature in De Pere, Wis., on Nov. 7, St. Joseph's topped the Knights of St. Norbert's College by a score of 12-7. Led by the running of fullback Clayton Klein and the outstanding play of freshmen Gerry Campagna and Bill Bazil, the Pumas captured their second victory of the campaign as opposed to six losses.

Klein scored both of the touchdowns for St. Joe, one on a 60 yard pass play and the other on a three yard plunge. Sharing the spotlight with the Puma fullback was the entire St. Joe line. Pete Fenlon, Tom Dudeck, John Thorpe, Ed Linskey, John Donnelly, Fred Handler, and Joe Rossi all played the entire game, and successfully stopped the running attack of the Wisconsin school. St. Norbert's was only able to threaten the Puma goal twice, and one of these threats was set up by a St. Joe fumble.

St. Joe received the opening kickoff but was soon forced to punt as the Knight's defense refused to give ground. It soon became evident that defense would be the dominant factor of the game as both teams were forced to punt repeatedly in the opening period.

However, the complexion of the contest changed in the second period as Handler blocked a St. Norbert's punt to give the Pumas a scoring opportunity. The ball was recovered on the 30 yard line but St. Joe couldn't capitalize on the break and St. Norbert's took possession. After failing to move the ball, the Knights punted into St. Joe territory. Shortly after this, Zimmer and Klein combined talents on a 60 yard pass and run play and the Pumas went into the lead. The extra point was missed and the score was 6-0 in favor of the Collegeville eleven. An attempted field goal by Zimmer later in this period hit the crossbar and nullified the scoring chance.

In the second period, the running of Bazil and Campagna kept the Pumas in command of the situation. The two talented freshmen sparked a drive that moved the ball to the Knight's three yard line where a fumble cost St. Joseph another touchdown. But following a St. Norbert's punt, the Pumas again moved the ball to the three yard line and this time Klein plunged into the end zone for the Pumas second tally.

St. Norbert's scored later in this period when a 15 yard penalty put the ball on the St. Joe one yard line. On the third assault the Puma line yielded and the score was 12-7. St. Joe's goal was threatened again in the closing minutes of the game, but an interception ended it all.

Hall League Organized

An Interhall touch football league has been organized on the campus, similar to the intramural football program. Each hall will enter one team with the exception of Seifert Hall, which has been allowed two teams, one from East Seifert and the other from West Seifert.

Each team will consist of eleven starting players and an unlimited number of substitutes. The hall winning the tournament will receive the traditional plaque awarded to the victorious team each year. Xavier Hall is now in the possession of the plaque.

The schedule of the opening games of the single elimination tournament is as follows: Wed. 4:15 on field 1, Science Hall vs. East Seifert; field 2, Ad. Building vs. West Seifert; field 3, Noll vs. Drexel. Thurs. 4:15 on field 1, Gasper vs. Xavier.

As the final week of the intramural football tournament draws near, the Indians and the Unanimous are still undefeated in league play. These two teams will meet this week to determine the champion of the second round.

showed a two-rating total of 72.4%. Worst complainers were the men of Noll, with 67.2% only "for" the facilities.

Only 38.9% of St. Joe students had adequate space for their equipment, the survey showed. 33.9% needed one-fourth more, 17.8% one-half more and 9.4% twice as much. Noll was on top this time, 47.5% of its residents having enough room; for contrast, Drexelites were but 31.3% of this mind. The most urgent need is apparently in the Science dorm, where 40% needed at least half again as much space; on the other side only 15.6% of Seifert's denizens were in this plight.

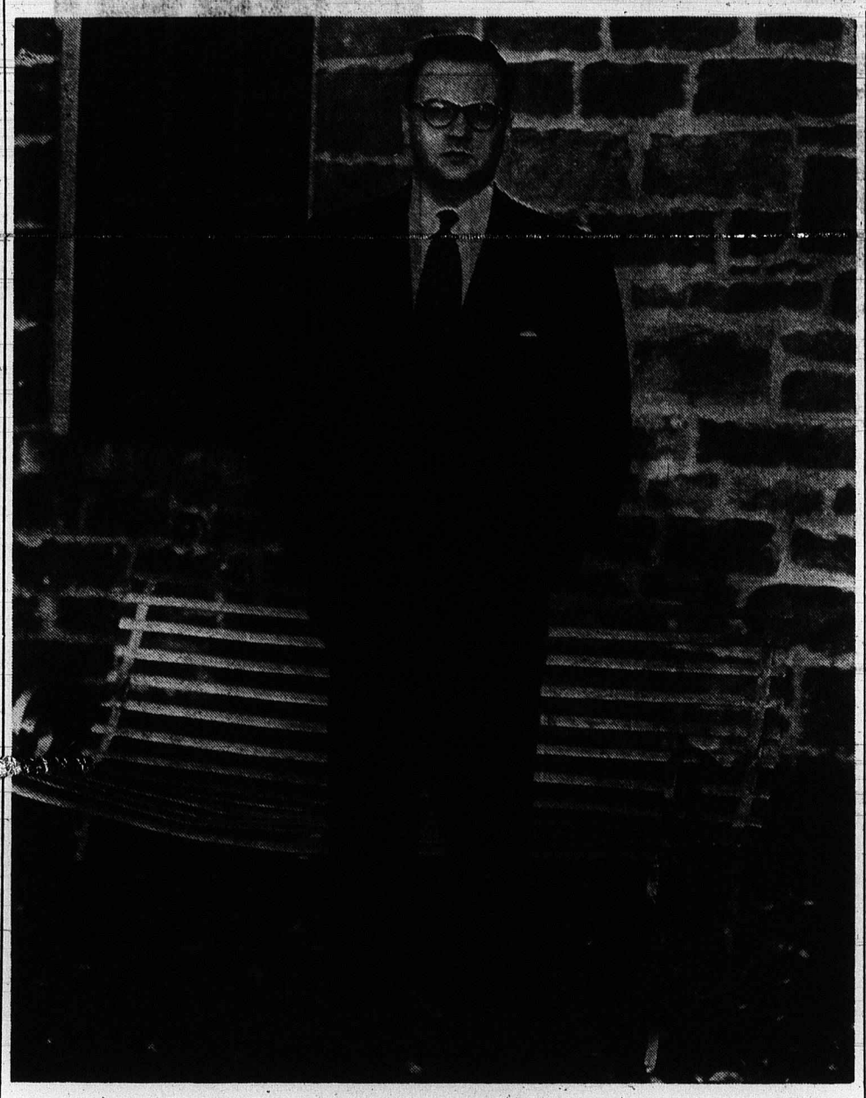
Satisfactory temperature control is had by [illegible] men. 22.5% have "just fair" control, 26.6% "irregular" and 12.5% "highly irregular." The best is apparently owned by men of Science, with almost 80% satisfactory. Seifert had 47.6% in the same category. Contrast this with Noll's 18.6% and Drexel's 10.6%. Only nine men in all Drexel had such a system. On the adverse side, 69.4% of the residents of the "other side" had irregular control of some sort. Noll had 57.7% in this list, Science only 5.4%.

Space for clothes brought about virtually an even split between the four categories offered. 20.9% had adequate space, 27.7% needed one-fourth more, 28.7% one-half more, and 22.7% twice as much. Here Science was at the bottom, with only 5.3% having adequate and 72.3% needing at least half as much more. Nollites were most satisfied; 39.3% had adequate facilities. Next came Seifert at 29.8%, Ad at 17.1%, and Drexel at 10.6%. Only 34.7% of Seifert needed half as much more.

Beds got a razzing, though 26.5% said they were adequate. 35.2% called them uncomfortable to lead the list, 20.4% said they were comfortable, 9.5% too small, and 8.4% just plain "bad." Noll and Seifert virtually tied for the worst bunks. Science had the best (55.6% "comfortable") and Ad next.

On the opinion question about individual washbasins, 42.7% said "nice, but not urgent," 32.6% "desirable," 19.9% "unnecessary," and only 4.8% "extremely important." Here, sentiment was similar throughout Collegeville, all halls listing their individual choices in the same order and approximately the same percentages, except Science where "extremely important" won out over "unnecessary," 7.4% to 5.8%.

Drexel Prefect Forsakes Politics For Teaching Career At St. Joe



Mr. Richard Kilmer

By Bill Feely

I think that I shall never see a poem as lovely as a tree . . . The resident of Drexel Hall, and the entire student body as well, may be unaware that Mr. Richard Kilmer, second floor prefect of the old Indian school and new History prof. here at St. Joe, is a distant relative of the World War I hero-poet, Joyce Kilmer.

To dispel any Erin Go Brach theories Mr. Kilmer assured me that neither he nor his fourth cousin owe their linage to the old sod, but are of Pennsylvania Dutch ancestry who settled the area about his home town of South Bend back in 1836 when 'Injuns' were more than mere copy for a western novelist. His grandfather was a surgeon and his father is a dentist, now retired.

Mr. Kilmer attended the University of Notre Dame where he received his A.B. in 1943; his M.A. in 1947; and his Ph.D. Candidacy in 1949. He became assistant Dean of the College of Arts and Letters in the University but resigned that post in 1952 only to make his bow in the political spotlight.

Through the help of a leading political figure in Minnesota and the East who had fostered the idea to nominate the then General Eisenhower, Mr. Kilmer came in charge of the drafting of the Republican nominee's personal correspondence. He remained in Denver, Colorado, at this job until Labor Day when Ike moved to the Commodore Hotel in New York City, later known as the 'Little White House.' Here he became officer of the day greeting, meeting, and receiving celebrities of all rank from the Indian ambassadress Madame Pandit to Claire Booth Luce.

After the election he decided that the hubub of a political life was not for him and he refused a job in Washington under the new administration.

It was through Ed Fisher, one time public relations man here on campus, that Mr. Kilmer heard of St. Joe. To end the interview I asked him what he thought of the place. He quite frankly answered "I like it."

Cincinnati Girls Give Performance

Before a capacity audience gathered in the St. Joseph auditorium, the combined glee clubs of St. Mark's parish and Regina High School, both of Cincinnati, Ohio, presented a selection of musical numbers followed by a variety type program.

After opening the program with the Christopher theme song, Let's All Light Just One Little Candle, the all-girl aggregation sang such numbers as The Lord's Prayer, and Whistle While You Work. A western skit was presented including a tap dance and various western numbers.

Two other skits closed the program. The first of these was based on the story of Hans Christian Anderson. The second skit was a parody on Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs. Several members of the glee club took the parts of the dwarfs masquerading as St. Joe football players.

The girls remained on the campus for a mixer at Raleigh Hall, Saturday evening. They returned to Cincinnati the following day.

Chicago Club

The Chicago Club, under the moderation of Fr. Edward Maziarz, held its first meeting of the 1953-54 school year on Thursday evening, October 28. Officers for this year are John Thorpe, President; Fred Handler, Vice-president; Ed Linskey, Secretary-Treasurer; and Jim Righeimer, Sergeant-at-Arms. Approximately seventy-five Freshmen were accepted into the club and still more are expected to apply for membership.

Plans for a Thanksgiving Day Dance were discussed by the members. It will be held at the Southmoor Hotel in Chicago on November 26, and will be open to all St. Joseph students and their dates. The music will be furnished by Don Falls and his orchestra.

Three Attend Conference

The Rev. James Hinton, moderator of the St. Joseph publications, recently attended the National Catholic Education Press Conference held in Milwaukee, Wisconsin on Nov. 1 and 2. Fr. Hinton participated in a panel discussion on the publication problems of the faculty advisors.

Also attending the convention were Joe Kneip, STUFF editor, and Dick Obergfell, STUFF sports editor. They attended the various discussions on The Role of the Catholic Newspaper in the United States Today. Smaller sessions were also held on such topics as editing, writing, reporting, and photography.

The conference was attended by 3,000 students from schools throughout the country, and was sponsored by the Catholic School Press Association and the Marquette University School of Journalism.
